- Jeff returns to his apartment, parks in the driveway and sits in his car for 15 minutes. Randy begins to complain about chest and back pain.
 - Within a few minutes an ambulance arrives.
- Jeff goes into his apartment. The ambulance is there for 15 minutes when Randy's family begin to pull up everywhere.
 - Jeff has appointments to attend and exits his apartment to let everyone standing around know he has to leave but doesn't get the chance.
- Just as George tells Jeff "it's best if you aren't here right now", Chase pulls up. Chase is one of the witnesses, and Chases' wife is the woman (guest) Randy has threatened for 9 months - cornering her alone, to yell at her alone, to exploit her anxiety issues.
 - Jeff gets in Chases' car and asks to be driven away.
- Randy returns that evening - the rumor is Randy's medication was changed and the insulin caused his 'sugars to be off'
 - Jeff has heard Randy tell different visitors different accounts over the month of June - some people are told it was his sugars, some are told it was his anxiety, some are told it was muscle cramps

- Randy has purchased nearly the entire line of Radley power tools from Homehardware. Randy drags them out onto the porch, one at a time, to show them to visitors, claiming :
 - Randy only needs one more to complete the collection.
 - Randy doesn't need them, but he wants them so he bought them.
 - Randy is keeping them in the box so they don't get ruined.
- Randy's welfare fraud (working in the community, 'collecting' items to fix and re-sell) is on the rise. Randy is increasingly leaving Crystal alone for hours at a time.
 - Fay does sit with Crystal for a lot of time each day and each week. However Randy regularly leaves Crystal alone, unsupervised, for hours at a time.
 - In April Jeff found Crystal alone on the porch. Crystal asked Jeff to sit for a coffee with her, she had no memory of the intervening time. She believed it was the summer before and asked why Jeff hadn't been by for coffee in a while.

 - Crystal sits on the porch and starts to cry. Randy goes around the apartment to get his wagon.
 - When Randy comes back, only minutes later, Crystal has stopped crying and forgotten where he was going. She yells at him ‘Where the fuck are you going now ?!’
 - Randy yells back “I told you, you fucking lump, I’m going down the street to get something.”
- Jeff left in the car.
- Jeff, coming back 15 minutes later, Randy and Crystal are half a block down the street, dragging some kind of cabinet home on Randy’s wagon. They have stopped and are talking to a passing driver.
 - Driver : “Why isn’t Crystal using her scooter ?”
 - Randy : “I only let her have it once in a while because I don’t want her as big as a pork barrel.”
